

HOW MUCH CAN I ADD TO MY SUPER ACCOUNT?

The information in the document forms part of the Product Disclosure Statement (PDS) for the Mine Superannuation Fund.

The government encourages people to put money into super by taxing super at a lower rate than other investments. That's why it's a great way to save for your retirement.

What's the catch?

Tax concessions on super investments are the Australian government's second largest tax concession after the capital gains tax exemption on people's homes.

That's a lot of tax revenue the government misses out on. To ensure people don't abuse this tax break, the government limits how much any individual can put into super in any one year and still receive tax concessions.

These limits are called contribution caps.

What's my contribution cap?

How much you can put into your super account each year depends on whether you're making before-tax or after-tax contributions.

Before-tax contributions

Before-tax contributions, also referred to as 'concessional contributions', is money you put into your super before any tax is taken out. They include compulsory 11% employer contributions and any salary sacrifice contributions your employer makes for you*. After-tax super contributions you claim as a tax deduction will also count towards your before-tax contributions cap.

Before-tax contributions are taxed at 15% if you earn less than $250,000 pa and 30% if you earn more than $250,000 pa.

Contribution cap: $27,500. This amount will be indexed in line with average weekly ordinary time earnings (AWOTE), rounded down to the nearest $2,500.

If you have less than $500,000 in super at June 30 in the previous financial year and haven't used all your annual before-tax contribution cap over the previous five years, you can make catch up contributions using unused cap amounts. As this initiative started in the 2018-19 financial year, four years of catch up contributions can be used in the 2022-23 financial year, with the full five years of catch up contributions available in the 2023-24 financial year.

i Remember to consider any bonuses and pay rises, as these may result in your employer making higher than expected before-tax contributions into your super account.

* If you have a defined benefit account your before-tax contribution amount is worked out using a government formula, and is referred to as 'notional taxed contributions'. We'll report your notional taxed contributions in your member statement.

After-tax contributions

An after-tax contribution is money you put into your super from your take home pay after your tax is taken out or from other savings. After-tax contributions are also referred to as 'non concessional contributions' and aren't taxed within the fund.

Contribution cap: $110,000 per year or $330,000 over three years under the bring forward arrangements if you're under age 75. The three year period starts when you contribute more than $110,000 in a financial year.

If you have more than $1.9 million in super across all your accounts, including pensions, your contribution cap is zero. This means you could pay extra tax on any after-tax contributions. If you have between $1.68 and $1.9 million your $330,000 three year cap will be lower. You can find more information at the Australian Tax Office's website at ato.gov.au i Remember to consider any contributions your spouse may have paid into your account or contributions in excess of your before-tax cap for the financial year. These will be included in your after-tax contribution amount.

Other limits on making contributions

If you're aged 67 to 74 and want to claim your after-tax contributions as a tax deduction, you must work at least 40 hours in any 30 consecutive day period during the current financial year. This is called the 'work test'.

Once you turn age 75, we can only accept employer super contributions and downsizer contributions.

Also, you can't make after-tax contributions if your super fund doesn't have your Tax File Number or the contribution itself exceeds the cap.

What if I put in more than the cap?

Before-tax contributions

If you go over the before-tax contribution cap, you can either:

- withdraw up to 85% of the excess contributions and have the excess amount included in your assessable income and taxed at your marginal tax rate, along with an interest charge. You'll receive a 15% tax offset for the contributions tax already paid by your super fund.
- keep the excess contribution in your super fund and have the excess amount included in your assessable income and taxed at your marginal tax rate, along with an interest charge. You'll receive a 15% tax offset for the contributions tax already paid by your super fund. To help pay the extra tax, you can withdraw up to 85% of your excess before-tax contributions from your super fund. The money kept in super will be added to your after-tax contribution cap.

After-tax contributions

If you go over the after-tax contribution cap you can either:

- withdraw the excess amount and earnings and include the earnings as part of your income, or
- pay the top marginal tax rate tax on the excess amount.

Any excess before-tax contributions that you don't withdraw from your super fund will also count towards your after-tax contribution cap.

How do I pay any additional tax?

If you choose to keep your excess contribution amounts in your super account, after you lodge your tax return the ATO will notify you of the excess contribution amount.

You can choose whether to pay additional tax on excess before-tax contributions from your super or other assets.

Additional tax on excess after-tax contributions must be paid from your super.

To pay tax from your super account, you'll need to send us a voluntary release authority form. The ATO will send this form to you along with your assessment.

Does Mine Super monitor my contributions?

No, we can't monitor your contributions because the caps apply to all contributions you make during the financial year, including those made to any other super funds you may have.

This means it's important to keep your own records of your total contributions to ensure you don't exceed the caps.
